Lutheran High School names a new varsity baseball coach!

Lutheran High School is pleased to announce that John Amschel has been named its new varsity baseball coach.

John Amschel is a 2000 graduate of Denver Lutheran High School. During his time at Lutheran High school he was a three sport letter winner, including a first team all conference as well as a first team all state baseball player. John played college baseball at Concordia University Wisconsin, winning multiple conference and team awards. During his time at Concordia he studied secondary education.

John already has a long history as a baseball coach. While playing baseball for Lutheran High School, John spent two seasons coaching a Lutheran High School feeder program as well as getting the opportunity to coach Lutheran's summer team after graduation. John continued his passion for coaching baseball while playing in Wisconsin, becoming the head "C" team coach for three years at a large school in West Allis, WI. After moving back to Colorado, John became the head "C" team coach for two seasons at Thomas Jefferson High School, before accepting a position at Lutheran High School Parker as varsity assistant coach. John has held the position of assistant varsity coach for the past five seasons at Lutheran High School Parker.

In addition to coaching baseball John has spent the last seven years coaching basketball at DLHS and LHSP. Over the last six years he has been the head varsity soccer coach for both DLHS and LHSP. John resides in Aurora, CO.
